

Building Effective Career and Professional Development Programs: Connecting Students, Faculty, and Institutional Needs and Outcomes

Dr. Judith Stoddart, Interim Dean
Dr. Henry (Rique) Campa, III, Associate
Dean

December 2015

Agenda

- Describe existing attitudes and practices surrounding professional development and mentoring.
- Discuss challenges and barriers to effective career and professional development programs.
- Provide examples of structured collaborations between the Graduate School and campus partners at Michigan State. Who are your partners?
- Introduce different models for evaluation and assessment of programs.
- Share tools for building programs, designing collaborations, and creating assessments.

Introduce yourself at your table

What challenges do you see in building effective career and professional development programs on your campus?

What strategies have you found to be effective in addressing these challenges?

Report out

Where we started 2000-2004

Individual workshops and activities (Expanded Careers, Conflict Resolution workshops, Responsible Conduct of Research workshops)

Pros:

- Students came!
- They liked them.
- They learned things (content evaluation).
- We collected some data through surveys.

Cons:

- “Just in time”
- Not really development.
- We were not consistent in approach or message.

PREP

MSU Career and Professional Development Programs (Planning, Resilience, Engagement, Professionalism)

PREP Goals

- Broaden awareness of professional expectations in graduate education
- Prepare students to plan and manage their own careers
- Promote graduate student retention and completion
- Provide students with a competitive edge in securing professional positions

- 1. Turning activities into a program:
Career Success.
- 2. Restructuring a program:
Certification in College Teaching

A program centered around individual workshops and activities (sound familiar?)

Pros:

- Good model
- One college had created a course related to the Certification
- Designed to include colleges

Cons:

- Little participation
- Little structure or guidance
- Depended on an individual mentor
- Few colleges participated

Title of an existing program: Certification in College Teaching

Audience being trained: Graduate students—hope to add postdocs

What are your desired outcomes or goals?

1. More students and postdocs participating and completing and bring them together in a learning community
2. Increase the quality and level of engagement of those who were participating

Other needed collaborators to meet your goals?

1. Advisors
2. Colleges
3. Other units involved in teaching development (e.g., libraries, Writing Center)

Format and activities:

Create an institute to offer workshops around the main competency areas

Create a rubric to outline goals, skills, and levels of development

2009 (piloted with CGS Grant)	20
2010 – 2015 (Interventions: Certification Institute, rubrics)	501

Improved visibility and coordination of program

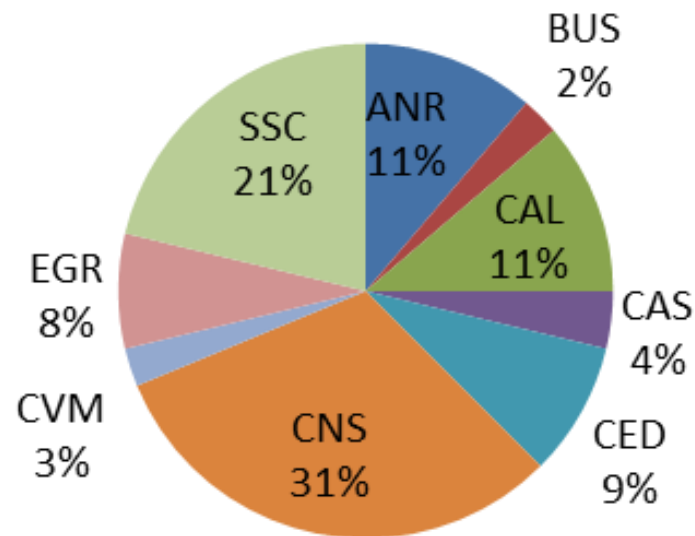

Assumptions we make about who attends?

This workshop is a kind of shock to me about that teaching requires so many components, considerations, and time. My question is why this program is not established nor advertised to Post-docs through P.I., whose key duty is to raise next generation of educator or researcher.

“Creating a Climate” – Shifts in college participation

- Engineering doctoral students:
14% (2012) to 20% (2015)
- STEM Post-docs:
3% (2014) to 23% (2015)

New colleges/units now participating: Nursing, Music, Veterinary Medicine, Education, Communication Arts & Sciences, Social Sciences (more active)

How do you “create a climate”?

Use the “activity” to INVITE college-level administrators to be on your agenda!

- 1. Turning activities into a program:
Career Success.
- 2. Restructuring a program:
Certification in College Teaching
- 3. Creating a new program:
Graduate School Writing Fellows

Graduate School Writing Fellows in the Disciplines

Goal: 10 writing fellows across campus working in departments

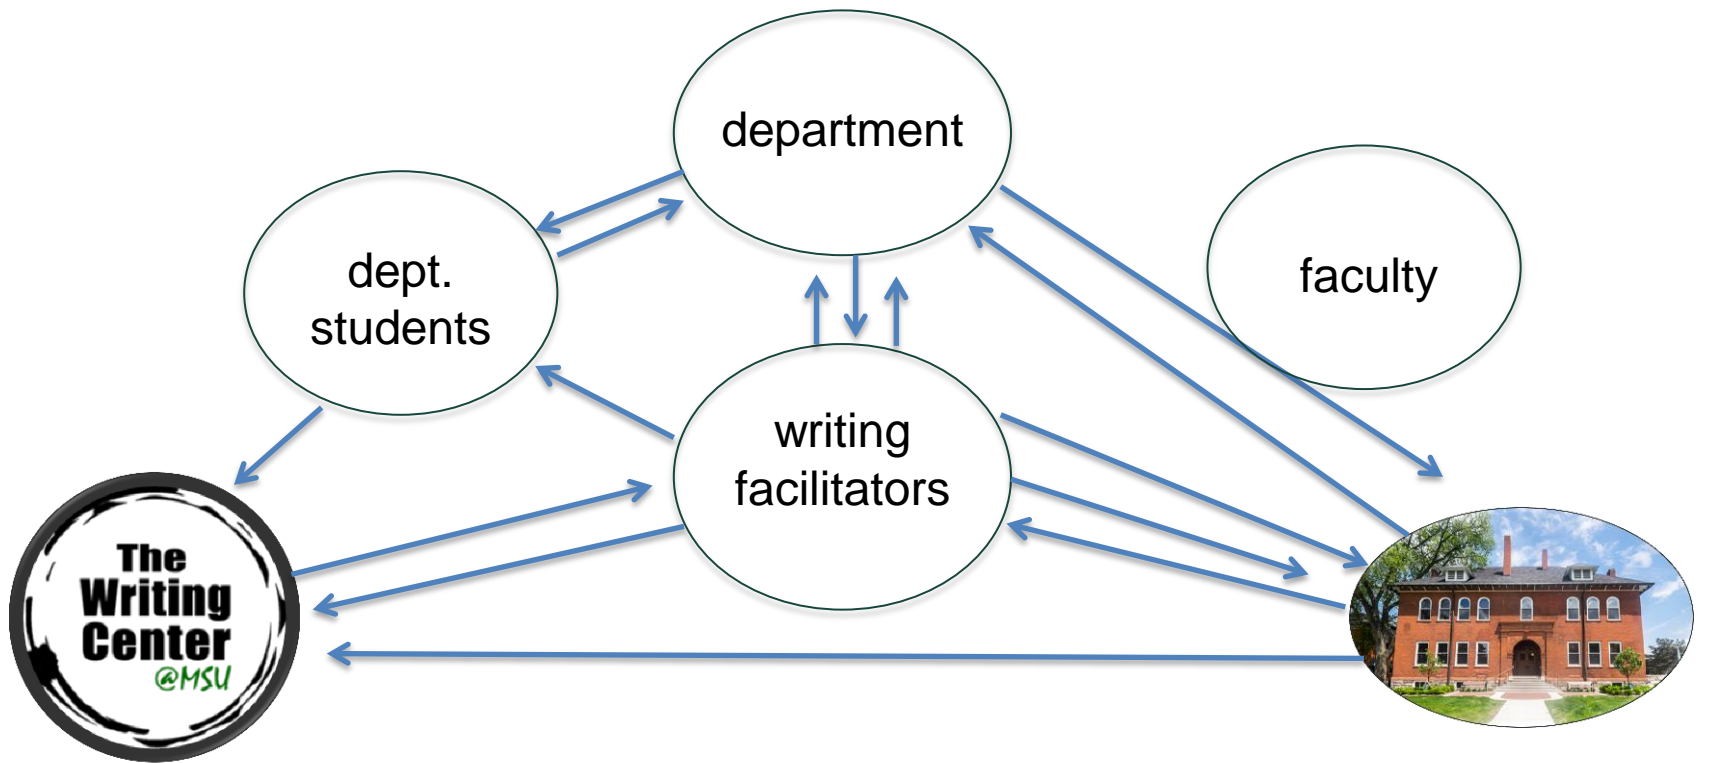

Eligibility: Advanced doctoral students

Requirement: Work with graduate program director to define needs

Assessment: GPD and fellow define goals, mechanisms, evaluation

Graduate School Writing Fellows in the Disciplines

Collaboration Model

Writing in the Disciplines: Peer Mentoring

Results from pilot:

- All Sociology participants passed 2nd-year paper, most with no revisions required.
- Genetics dissertation proposals passed with no revisions required.
- 4 Neuroscience students published peer-reviewed articles.
- Students and facilitators reported that participants' "writing and confidence level improved dramatically."
- Both participants and facilitators felt better connected to department.

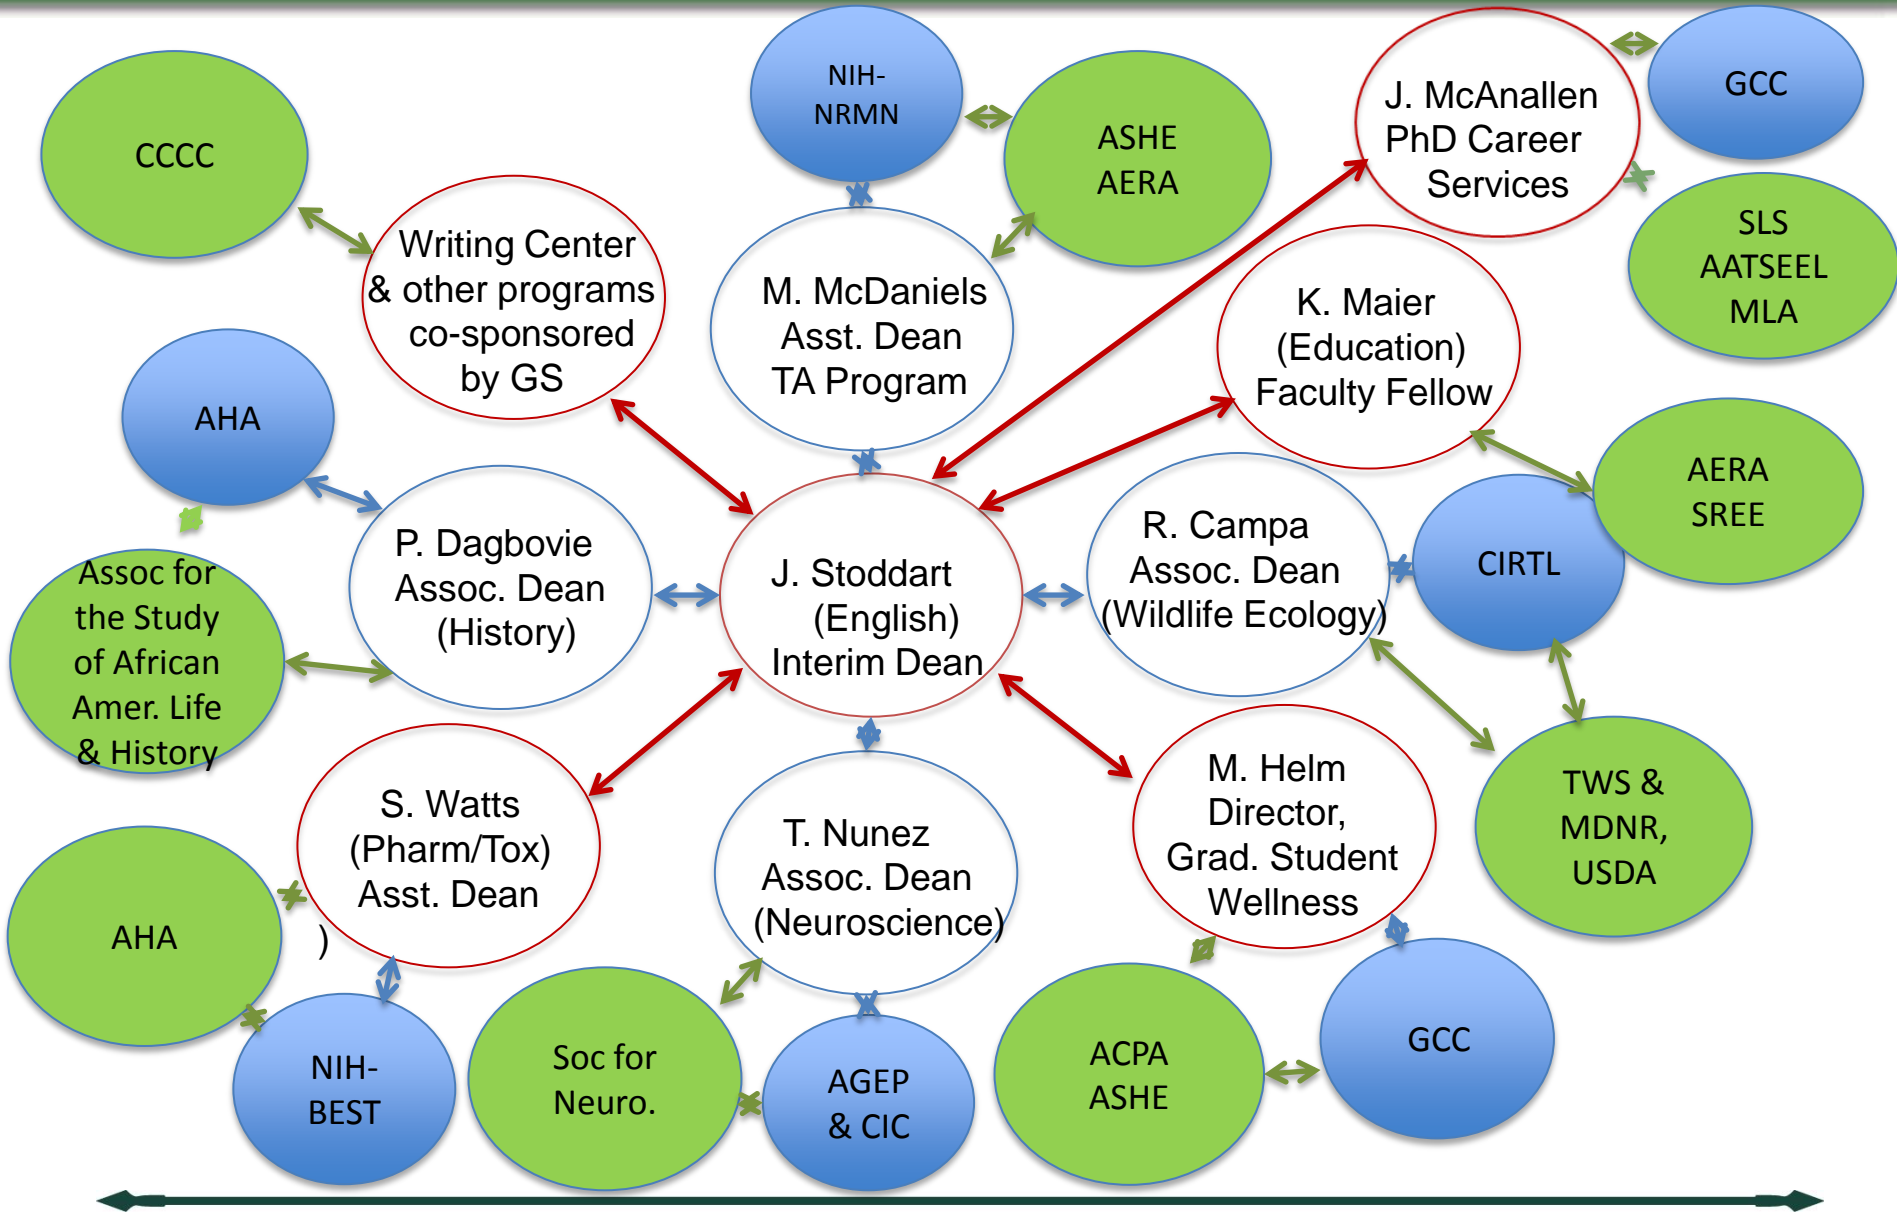

Goal: Embedding the culture of career and professional development in colleges and departments.

Mechanisms: Structure for culture and tools.

Graduate School Staff Composition & Network

What are your major challenges to creating a culture for professional development?

What partnerships on campus can help you address those challenges?

What do you not have on your home campus that you need (e.g., expertise, program content, resources)?

- Sharing plans for programs or activities

What would you like to do?

- Posting questions

Learn from your colleagues

- Finding expert presenters from other institutions

You have national colleagues-invite them to co-present

- Sharing resources

e.g., workshop descriptions, surveys, etc.
